LOCAL & GENERAL ITEMS.

HARMONY Lodge I.O.O.F. has decided to attend the Coronation.

The longest flag-pole in town has arrived for Honolulu Engine Co. No. 1. It is 127 feet long.

The Law which prohibits drays from being driven faster than a walk, is not strictly enforced as it ought to be.

How is it that the Nuuanu Valley Cemetery fence remains so long unfinished? It is no protection at present against stray animals.

The notice "First come, first served," has brought shippers of freight, per Lehua, to some alacrity in getting their freight down. No less than ten loaded drays were on the wharf before 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

The second bridge on Nuuanu Avenue wants fixing. It shakes with even a horseman passing over it. We believe it has been erected over twenty years, so that it is time to have it fixed.

An immense quantity of freight had to be left behind by the Lehua yesterday—all Mr. Wilder's own freight included. The traffic between Honolulu and the Islands is increasing month by month.

How long has the Insane Asylum been at Kalihi? A short time ago it was at Palama, and we were not aware that it had been removed, until we saw the head line of an article in Saturday's P.C.A.

The large portraits of the Royal Family were won last night by Mr. Smithies, with No. 11, and the small ones by Mr. Gibson, with No. 24. The portrait of the King's mother was presented to His Majesty by Mr. Smithies.

Mr. H. Macfarlane is making steady improvements on his ranch over at Koolau. He is importing milk cows of the best kinds, and will shortly be in a position to supply the residents of Honolulu with the best of butter in good condition.

The Kapiolani Park Association met on Monday evening. They had quite a good meeting. The following directors were elected: Frank Brown, H. Macfarlane, G. Lucas, C. Brown, J. S. McGrew, W. G. Irwin, R. Lishman, A. S. Cleghorn, S. G. Wilder, H. A. Widemann, J. O. Dominis.

The first boarding house proprietor that has the moral courage to drive out those mangy, stinking, diseased cur dogs from his dining rooms, will not only immortalize himself but greatly increase his business. It is very unpleasant having even a clean dog, let alone a dirty stinking one, come rubbing against your clean clothes, and then snarling and slobbering all round the room, finishing up with a general fight, is not at all calculated to add to one's comfort during meals.

We hear from good authority that not less than 200 pheasants have, within the last two months, been slaughtered on this island by orders from high quarters, their feathers being wanted for some kind of a paraphernalia on or about the 12th of next month. The Game Law reads, "Foreign-imported birds are protected by a fine of ten dollars to anyone killing, snaring or trapping them, regardless of time or season." This wholesale slaughter is encouragement with a vengeance to those who have spent their money in importing and time in rearing and watching these imported birds.

SOUTH AUSTRALIAN CORRESPONDENCE.

ADELAIDE, NOV. 28, 1882.

Since I wrote my last "Budget" our Parliament has been prorogued. The session just ended has been an eventful one; many important acts have been passed, but foremost among them, viewed from a national aspect, may be placed the bill authorizing the construction of a railway via Nairne, Callington, and the Murray Bridge, through the ninety-mile desert to the Victorian border. This bill was carried by a large majority in both Houses, its supporters regard it as our first important step towards a union of the five colonies—while its opponents contend that Melbourne, being the larger town, will benefit most by it and that our legitimate trade will be drawn in that direction. The outlay will be about a million sterling. The Victorian government is pushing its railway system rapidly westward, and will meet our line near Border-town. The residents between Melbourne and Adelaide are jubilant with the prospect of being able to visit both capitals by rail.

Our Governor-in-Chief will be removed in about three months' time to New Zealand. It will be a great loss to the Colony as His Excellency is highly esteemed for his many good qualities; besides he is a noted civil engineer, and his advice has been of great benefit to the Colony. We, South Australians, may congratulate our neighbors on the appointment. It has not yet transpired who will be his successor; be that as it may, we cannot benefit by the change. Lady Jervois, too, is deservedly highly esteemed, she being foremost in helping every good cause: her lady-like bearing, liberality and sociality have won for her golden opinions. P.T.H.

INTER-COLONIAL NEWS.

QUEENSLAND.

The Government have accepted the resignation of Mr. Thallon, who was recently appointed traffic manager on the Southern and Western Railway. The Cingalese labour difficulty still continues. About half the number landed at Bundaberg was now wandering over the country. The public have been warned by Bundaberg magistrates against employing the strollers, on the ground that they are under lawful engagements to certain sugar planters in that district. So the wretched dupes are wandering about as mendicants. They do not fail to get sympathy, and something more substantial; but their position is most unsatisfactory and discreditable. Nobody seems able to solve the labour problem. The Planters' Association at Maryborough decided to open communications with the Rev. M. MacFarlane, of New Guinea, to see whether it would be possible to secure a supply of labour from that quarter.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

A private letter from Borneo describes it as a grand sugar-growing country. The writer, who has had a practical acquaintance with the Northern Territory, has taken up a great quantity of land in the former place, which he is cultivating already.

We are informed that Mr. F. S. De Cesare, a member of the Council of Malta, is at present on a visit to Sydney, having been deputed by the Government of Malta to ascertain whether these colonies afford a fitting field for Maltese emigrants. The population of Malta is felt to be excessive so that it is necessary to provide some outlet for the superabundance. Many have emigrated to Algeria, where they have been found very useful both as handicraftsmen and as labourers. Mr. De Cesare brought a few out with him to Queensland, where they readily found situations, and the proprietors of the sugar plantations appear very anxious to obtain a supply of this kind of labour. Mr. De Cesare recently arrived in Sydney bringing with him letters from the Secretary of State to his Excellency the Governor, and also letters to Sir Henry Parkes, and he is engaged in making inquiries as to what openings there are for these Maltese people, and also as to the facilities they will have for the acquisition of land. S. M. Herald.

DIED.

On January 16th, at No. 36 Alaken st., Georgie Ethel, the beloved wife of Hy. Johnston, aged 31 years. The funeral will take place from her late residence at 10 o'clock this morning.
